How to grow your My.Club audience with Twitter

If you are looking to broaden your audience, it's always a good idea to share a link to your profile on social media. But you also need to remind people about yourself consistently. Otherwise, they tend to forget. It's only natural amid the barrage of information that each of us plows through every single day. But how do you keep reminding people about yourself without getting repetitive and boring?

A great way is to use the Announce on Twitter feature: every time you post on My.Club, you can let your Twitter followers know about it. This way, you keep your Twitter audience engaged and do it with a promise of different content.

You can find Announce on Twitter in your Account Settings. When you turn the toggle switch on, you need to connect your Twitter account, and you're done!

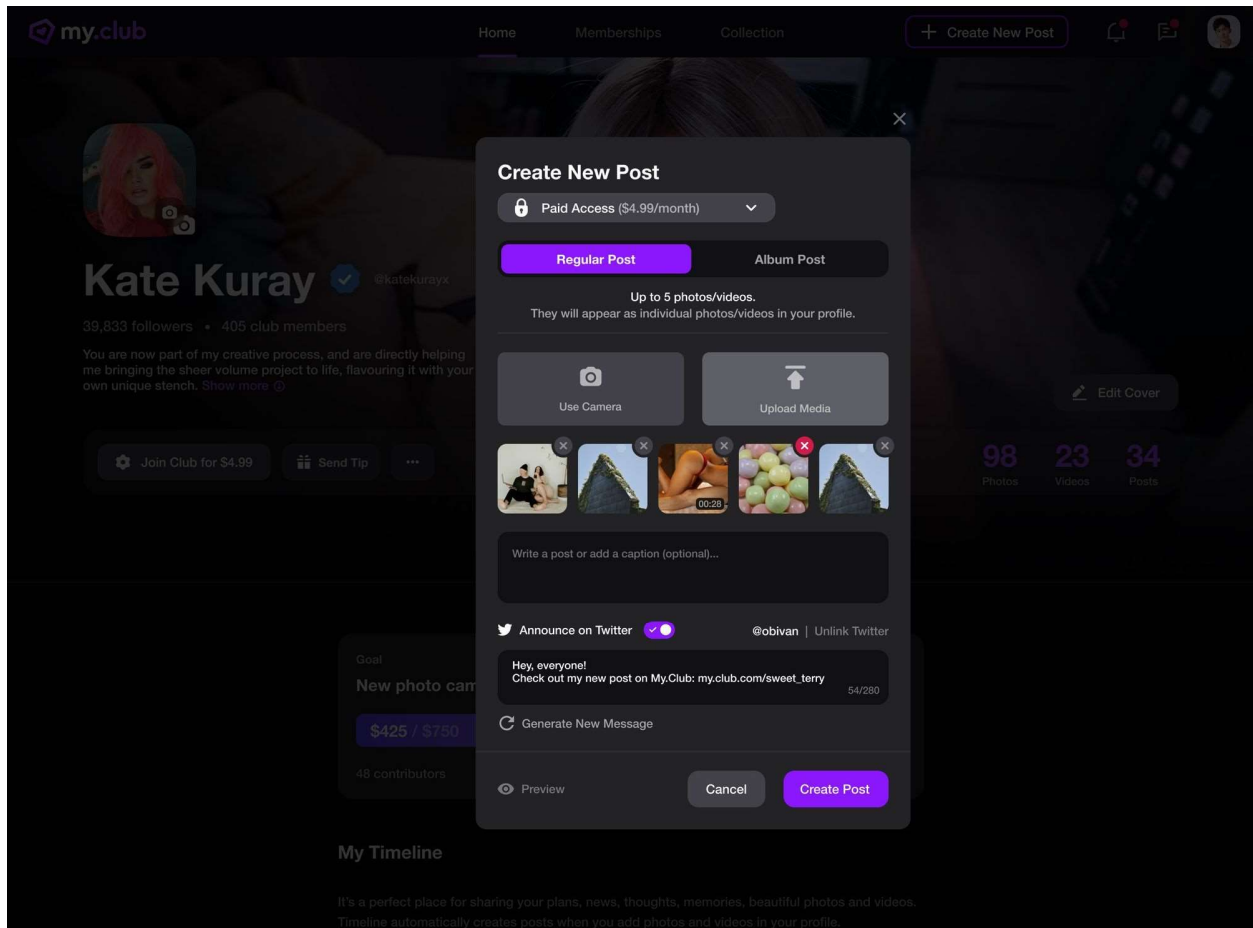

The screenshot shows the 'Announce on Twitter' settings interface. At the top, there's a Twitter bird icon and the title 'Announce on Twitter' next to a purple toggle switch that is turned on. Below this, a message states: 'When you make a post on My.Club, a tweet about it appears in your Twitter account. None of the content from your My.Club post is displayed in the tweet.' The user's Twitter handle '@sweet_tery' is shown on the left, and a 'Unlink Twitter' button is on the right. A text box contains a generated tweet: 'Hey, everyone! Check out my new post on My.Club: my.club.com/sweet_tery' with a character count of 54/280. Below the text box is a 'Generate New Message' button with a circular arrow icon. At the bottom right are 'Cancel' and 'Save' buttons.

You can choose from one of the generated messages to be your tweet or write something of your own. Once you click Save, tweets about your new My.Club posts will appear in your Twitter account. But no content from your My.Club posts is displayed in tweets. There's got to be some mystery to it ;)
